CD

Research has shown that eight week mindfulness courses are effective in improving general wellbeing, reducing stress and increasing resilience in dealing with life's pressures. Mindfulness is a mental training that reduces the tendency to go through life on autopilot. By learning to pay more attention to thoughts, feelings and experiences as they arise, it changes the way we relate to our day to day experiences, particularly stressful ones. Participants report reduced stress/worry/over-thinking and better sleep, more emotional regulation and more awareness and control in how they manage their minds and emotions. Rather than worrying about what has happened or what might happen, mindfulness trains us to respond skilfully to whatever is happening right now. In this course mindfulness meditation is presented in a practical and experiential way. There is a strong focus on learning skills that can be applied in everyday situations at work or home.

PARTICIPANTS

There will be a max of 12 participants on the course. It is open to anyone who is interested in gaining a life skill to live more in the present moment and be better equipped to respond rather than react to life.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

- Learning different forms of mindfulness practice that can be used to train our attention and build our resilience to stress in our life. We all experience stress from minor or major irritations and difficulties to deadlines/high work loads and balancing our work/life responsibilities..
- Understanding about autopilot and looking at how mindfulness can help us to disengage from automatic ways of thinking so that we choose how we respond rather than finding ourselves habitually just reacting to situations
- Seeing the link between thoughts and the state of our mind and body
- Learning why we react the way we do during stressful situations or social interaction, and practice applying mindfulness to those stressful situations / interactions
- Learning how to experience life more directly and step out of the sometimes relentless commentary of our thoughts.

Testimonials from Participants of recent Mindfulness Courses

"It is already proving very useful in daily life. I am finding that my anxiety levels are a lot lower and I am able to respond to stressful situations rather than reacting to them. I am sleeping better and I am much more aware of what is 'going on' inside me and how I am holding myself. My head is clearer and I feel less overwhelmed by situations."

"I home-school my son who is severely dyslexic and on the autistic spectrum. My daily mindfulness practice has enabled a calmer environment to teach in and also I have been passing on the techniques to my son who also seems a lot calmer and more self-accepting with less 'melt downs.'"

"This was an excellent, practical and useful course with intelligent, informed and skilful guidance from someone who has personal experience of the positive benefits of the practices."

"I now have the ability to take myself out of my internal chatter. I wish I had done this course years ago. The techniques make such a difference to the way I live my life."

"I had tried to learn a little mindfulness from a book with little success. I would definitely recommend a course to learn mindfulness – the classes add a whole dimension that just can't be captured otherwise."

What participants said they had got from the course that was of lasting value:

"Has really helped with my well-being, self esteem and being kinder to myself."

"The ability to notice my thoughts and be more self aware so I can choose how to respond rather than react."

"A way of dealing with stress and anxiety which can lead to happier living."

"Appreciating the moment, taking time out of a hectic schedule and starting to see the present."

"Before the course I was practicing mindfulness on a very small scale. The course has really opened my options with mindfulness so it has really become part of my life in a very practical way."

Participants' impressions of the training:

"Loved every session, looked forward to it each week."

"Very focused, informative and useful. Good balance of theory and practical."

"Just to say thank you for a wonderful experience. I will take lots from the training with me and will use it regularly."
